Sarah Junkin Woodard comes to us from the Center for Development in Central America (CDCA), the Nicaraguan project of the non-profit, faith-based organization, the Jubilee House Community (JHC). Working in Nicaragua for 25 years, the CDCA continues to adapt, seeking to respond to human needs created by natural disasters and poverty in the second poorest nation in the western hemisphere. Even as Nicaragua seeks to recover from its 2018 political crisis, the CDCA is focusing on helping communities maintain stability and as much normalcy as possible. Long-term goals remain focused on alleviating poverty, helping communities become self-sufficient, sustainable, democratic entities, using integrated appropriate technology in all projects, specifically in the areas of:

- sustainable economic development
- organic agriculture
- education
- health care

Sarah says, “The CDCA has been called to work with, and speak on behalf of, the poor in our area of Nicaragua, to share their lives and stories with folk in the U.S., bridging the gap between us to better understand the global and environmental connections between our communities.” Tax-deductible donations and pledges are encouraged. Proceeds from fair trade crafts also go to the operating expenses of the project.
